By Kevin Rudd. The 39th Premier of New South Wales from 1995 to 2005, as the leader of the Labor Party. Later, he joined the Federal Parliament as the member for Griffith in 2004. He served as the Minister for Immigration and Citizenship before being appointed as the Minister for Defence in 2005.

Former Premier of New South Wales For other persons named Bob Carr, see Bob Carr (disambiguation). The Richmond Institute's Carr Centre was established in 2011. Carr was a member of the Labor Party. Carr died in 2016.

By Kevin Rudd. The 39th Premier of New South Wales from 1995 to 2005, as the leader of the Labor Party. Later, he joined the Federal Parliament as the member for Griffith in 2004. He served as the Minister for Immigration and Citizenship before being appointed as the Minister for Defence in 2005.

2012 Prime Minister Juliana Gollop. We served as an alarm when something bad happened. But when the Labor party’s vote was stolen in 1993, Carr was the first minister of the new party. We had a function and although Carr gave a great performance, it was clear to me that he wasn’t the person for the job. As he also wasn’t a person considered for an office of the Freeman of the City of New South Wales (1999-2005), Carr was appointed to the Senate on 1 September 2005, on the Education, Employment, Workplace Relations and Industrial Relations Committee. Carr was a member of the European Parliament for a position in the United Nations Security Council, including the permanent participation for Japan, Brazil and India and two permanent seats for Australia and Russia. Carr served as the European Commissioner for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy, and as the High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy.

And the Tonnel Cross the City. These projects had a total cost of $5.4 billion, while almost $800 million was spent on the tunnel. Carr was the first minister of the new party. We had a function and although Carr gave a great performance, it was clear to me that he wasn’t the person for the job. As he also wasn’t a person considered for an office of the Freeman of the City of New South Wales (1999-2005), Carr was appointed to the Senate on 1 September 2005, on the Education, Employment, Workplace Relations and Industrial Relations Committee. Carr was a member of the European Parliament for a position in the United Nations Security Council, including the permanent participation for Japan, Brazil and India and two permanent seats for Australia and Russia. Carr served as the European Commissioner for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy, and as the High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy.

The reluc...